Four car garages gutted

11 cars go up in flames

People gathered at one of the four garages near Tipu Circle that caught fire in the wee hours of today. [More pictures on page 13]

Mysuru, Jan. 20 (OSR)- Over eleven cars were destroyed in a fire that broke out at four garages in city in the wee hours of today. The cars, most of them high-end, were left at the garages for repair works by owners and they have been charred beyond recognition.

The incident occurred at around 2.30 am today at four car garages at Tipu Circle near Millennium Circle and LIC Head Office. The fire was noticed only in the morning and by then the flames had destroyed all the four garages. Fire tenders were rushed from Bannimantap and they contained further damages. The cause for the fire is, however, not known. While a few residents of the area suspected electric short-circuit, the garage owners have alleged that some miscreants would have set one garage on fire that spread to other garages.

Speaking to Star of Mysore this morning, Munna, one of the garage owners, said that they have been doing business at the place since 11 years. "Owners had left their cars including Skoda, Swift, I20, Ritz and all of them have been destroyed," he said. The garages are owned by Kidhar, Khaleel, Riyaz and Munna.

US Govt. shuts down

Democrats, Republicans fail to reach a last-minute deal to fund government operations

Washington, Jan. 20- The United States Government has officially shut down. Law-makers are now scrambling for a quick deal to reopen it and buy them more negotiation time.

Donald Trump

The shut down happened yesterday midnight after Democrats and Republicans failed to reach a last-minute deal to fund its operations, divided in a bitter dispute over immigration and border security. The shut down formally began this morning, the first anniversary of President Donald Trump's inauguration.

In United States politics, a government shut down occurs when Congress and the President fail to pass legislations funding government operations. Shut downs disrupt government services and increase the cost to the government due to lost labour. During Barack Obama's Presidency, a government shut down occurred during October 1 - 16, 2013 and it had taken 24 billion dollars out of the economy

A stop-gap measure to stave off the shut down for four weeks was approved by the Republican-controlled House of Representatives yesterday, but was blocked in the Senate in a dramatic late-night vote. The White House blamed the shut down on the Democrats, calling them "obstructionist losers, not legislators."

Gresham's Law of Money in the World of Clothes

A postulate commonly attributed to Sir Thomas Gresham (1519-1579), an English Financier, but the original principle, said to have been stated at least forty years before by Nicolaus Copernicus (1473-1543), namely Gresham's Law is a monetary principle stating that 'bad money drives out good.' The term 'bad money' does not mean counterfeit coins and should be taken as worn-out, clipped or under-weight coins. When 'bad money' and 'good money' are both in circulation, people will use the 'bad money' when making purchases and the 'good money' will be hoarded. In ancient times, when coins made of gold and silver used to be in circulation, the full-weight coins were often melted down for making jewellery and also for sale by weight. In course of time, the entire stock of 'good money' might be driven out in this way, so that only 'bad money' remained in circulation. In modern times, however, full-weight metallic coins are not used. But the principle of Gresham's Law operates between new notes and old soiled notes. People most often keep fresh notes and shining coins with them and pay out soiled notes and worn-out coins. The aforementioned law connecting two forms of money, either as coins or as paper currency, seems to also fit in the world of clothes.

A keen observer of the outlook of people at large towards their attire in modern times has remarked that no one wants your used clothes any more. Prohibitive consumer prices of attires made of conventional materials such as silk, pure wool and cotton are at the root of people favouring synthetics, mimics and hybrid yarns.

Both materials used for making clothes and their diverse designs, in India particularly, have been conditioned by climatic parameters in different seasons. Thanks to the emergence of less expensive polymeric materials, considered to be easy on maintenance, unlike silk and cotton, and also unchecked volatility in fashions in clothes, similar to 'bad money of Gresham's Law,' the modern attires have driven out the climate-dictated clothes of yesteryears. For decades, the donation bin has offered citizens in rich countries a guilt-free way to unload their old clothes. Traders would collect these garments and ship them to other regions of the world to be worn again by masses in these regions.

The aforementioned cycle featuring clothes of one region being recycled in other regions is reportedly breaking down. As a fallout, nearly 200 businesses devoted to recycling clothes into yarn and blankets are prospering in some locations in the country. The money worth of the used-clothing trade estimated at $4 billion tells a different story from Gresham's Law.

In sum, the grace and sartorial appeal of attires belonging to bygone days have vanished.

EDITOR'S BOTTOMLINE

Just as pregnancy in an early age is considered risky, so is pregnancy at an advanced age (above 35 years) and can lead to complications for both the mother and the child. A woman is born with a certain number of eggs that will last her entire reproductive life. As she grows older, so do the eggs. Older eggs have increased chances of malformation. Thus the chances of delivering malformed babies increase with the woman's age. If the risk at 25 years is 1:1500, it will increase to 1:400 at 35 years of age. Chances of miscarriages also increase as the age increases, because the hardened arteries carrying blood to the unborn child are unable to do so effectively. The rate of losing a pregnancy in the initial stages also climbs — from a 9 per cent miscarriage rate among 22-year-olds to approximately 30 per cent in women in their 30s. — Ritu Sethi in Business Standard.

Dumbest internet challenge

London: In a world of dumb social media trends, we may have reached peak idiocy. Somehow the absurd and dangerous 'Tide Pod Challenge' has become a thing among teenagers, and is on the verge of going viral. The challenge involves filming yourself biting on one of the colourful laundry detergent pods, posting the video online, and daring friends to do the same. The so called "delicious-looking" pods are very hazardous to human health, and doctors have had to issue warnings about the dangers of eating them. "Our laundry pacs are a highly concentrated detergent meant to clean clothes, and they're used safely in millions of households every day. Despite these warnings, the craze only seems to be picking up momentum. We're just two weeks into 2018, and already 40 cases of detergent ingestion have been reported by The American Association of Poison Control Centers, half of which involved intentional ingestion. The trend is hard to trace but seems to have at least partially been kicked off by a fictional child.

Library of abandoned books

Ankara: An incredible new library has opened in the Çankaya district of Ankara, Turkey featuring a collection of salvaged books once destined for landfill. Local sanitation workers, who spent months collecting abandoned and discarded books from the streets, established the library to be used by themselves and their families. As the collection grew, however, word spread throughout the community, and locals began to donate books that they would have otherwise discarded. In September of last year, the Sanitation Department decided to open the library up to public use. Now the library boasts a collection of over 6,000 books ranging from literature to non-fiction, kids' section featuring comic books and so on. A previously empty brick factory located at the Sanitation Department's headquarters now houses the abandoned book library. Books are loaned out for two weeks, and borrowers can get an extension if needed. The city government also hired a full-time librarian to manage the library.

What is the main cause of an imbalance in gut flora?

The principal cause of overgrowth of candida albicans and other potentially harmful gut bacteria is sugar. Gut microbes feed and multiply in the presence of sugar in the digestive tract. The ultimate result of overgrowth of bad gut bacteria is belly fat.

Really...?

- Leukoplakia: It can appear as thick, white patches that form on the tongue or on your gums. Smoking tobacco is the most common cause of leukoplakia. Mild leukoplakia isn't usually dangerous but in serious cases it can be linked to oral cancer.
- A prolonged fever: An increased body temperature is not a bad thing, it's just your body letting you know that something is wrong and it is fighting off the infection. In some rare cases, however, it could be a symptom of something life-threatening. Cancers such as leukemia and lymphoma are types of cancer that commonly cause fever.

"No," said the boy. "Your painting's wider, so it'll cover three holes in our wall!"

VOICE OF THE READER

Non-ISI helmet: Why this wait?

Sir,

Wearing the helmet has become a useless charade as in majority of cases, just to hoodwink the Police, the two-wheel drivers wear all sorts of helmets that is useless to give protection, in case of accidents.

This is apart from the fact that the two-wheel drivers in many locations, specially in residential areas, rarely use it because the Police checking drive is absent. Many of the riders flouting the rules are young girls or women and the reason is not far to seek. Also in many cases the pillion riders do not wear it and the spectacle of children sitting in front without helmet is followed as a rule as though their life is expendable.

In spite of all these violations, it is a puzzle why the Police had to wait this long to enforce wearing of standard ISI mark helmets?

BJP's Parivartana Rally reaches Mandya; BSY targets CM

BJP State President B.S. Yeddyurappa is seen lighting the lamp during the inauguration of the Convention at Maddur organised as part of Parivartana Yatra yesterday as former External Affairs Minister S.M. Krishna, former Minister C.T. Ravi and others look on.

Mandya, Jan.20- BJP State President B.S. Yeddyurappa trained his guns on Chief Minister Siddharamaiah and the Congress Government and, rained assurances of development if BJP comes to power, on the first day of Parivartana Yatra at Silver Jubilee Park in Mandya district yesterday.

The Parivartana Yatra is scheduled to reach Mysuru on Jan.25 during which a public rally has been organised at the Maharaja's College Grounds.

Speaking after inaugurating the rally in Maddur, he said that if BJP comes to power, it will earmark Rs.1,500 crore for the irrigation projects for Mandya district alone. Singling out Siddharamaiah, Yeddyurappa said that the CM was indulging in "Thuglaq Durbar" and the Congress Government rule in Karnataka will end soon.

BJP has been ruling 19 States in the country and in the next six months, it will be ruling 22 States, including Karnataka. If BJP comes to power in Karnataka, Rs.1 lakh crore would be earmarked for irrigation. Pipes would be laid to release water from Krishna Raja Sagar (KRS) reservoir to Markonahalli Dam, he said.

Targeting the CM, Yeddyurappa said that the law and order situation has worsened in the State. Siddharamaiah has been looting the State's Treasury. Domestic violence on Dalit women and murders are on the rise. Even the High Court has criticised the State Government. Despite all these, the State Government has not learnt any lesson, he criticised.

Prime Minister Narendra Modi has been giving a transparent and clean governance and gained respect from the world community. Only if BJP comes to power in the State, Modi's hands can be strengthened, he said.

"When BJP was in power, it had announced a special Budget for the farmers. Free power, financial assistance to the milk producers, interest-free loans were implemented. The BJP Government had even waived farmers' loans twice. But the Siddharamaiah-led Government had cancelled all the schemes and betrayed the farmers," he alleged.

Yeddyurappa also pointed out various schemes implemented during his tenure including Bhagyalakshmi Scheme, development programmes for the Hindus, Muslims and Christians, which were withdrawn by the Congress Government.

Various schemes pertaining to the development that were withdrawn would be introduced again if BJP comes to power, he assured.

Yeddyurappa and former External Affairs Minister S.M. Krishna were the main attractions during the rally. Yeddyurappa said that he was very happy as Krishna accepted to be the part of the programme.

But overall, the Parivartana Yatra drew a poor response. The turnout was around 1,800 in Maddur and nearly 2,000 in Mandya. The number of attendees was lesser at Nagamangala.

Krishna attended the Yatra at Maddur and skipped the Mandya one. He slammed the Siddharamaiah Government for "failing to develop" the State.

The veteran BJP leader praised Prime Minister Narendra Modi for "making India strong and stable" in terms of development. He said that he could see a great new India emerging under the leadership of Modi.

Former Ministers C.T. Ravi and C.P. Yogeshwar and former MP Tejaswini Ramesh were the prominent leaders who participated in the programme.

Leaders lobby for BJP ticket in Nanjangud

S. Mahadevaiah

Kote Shivanna

S. Arun Kumar

Nanjangud, Jan. 20 (RS&DM)- With the State Assembly polls just a couple of months away, hectic political activities have begun in Nanjangud BJP, with leaders vying with each other for getting the party ticket.

Former Minister and senior BJP leader V. Sreenivasa Prasad, who quit his Assembly seat from Nanjangud after being unceremoniously dropped from Siddharamaiah's Cabinet, contested the by-polls that ensued and lost to Congress candidate Kalale Keshavamurthy.

Sreenivasa Prasad, who is hell-bent to ensure the defeat of the Congress in the forthcoming Assembly polls, is working hard to avenge his defeat. However, Prasad's declaration that he would not contest the polls, triggered a flurry of activities in Nanjangud BJP, with party leaders trying to out with each other in getting the party ticket from this SC reserved constituency.

The top BJP contenders are said to be S. Mahadevaiah, who lost to Sreenivasa Prasad by a slender margin of 753 votes in the 2013 Assembly polls, District BJP President Kote M. Shivanna and noted advocate S. Arun Kumar.

As the BJP top brass is looking for a winning candidate, party insiders say it was doubtful that S. Mahadevaiah, who has lost twice, may get the party ticket again.

As far Kote Shivanna is concerned, the BJP High Command is said to be looking at fielding him from Chamarajanagar (SC) constituency for the 2019 Lok Sabha polls.

Another prominent aspirant S. Arun Kumar is an advocate by profession and has worked for the cause of Uppara, Nayaka, Kumbara communities, who together play a crucial role in deciding the wining chances of candidates.

Apart from having considerable influence among young voters, Arun Kumar is said to have the support of State BJP President B.S. Yeddyurappa and MP Shobha Karandlaje and may ultimately become the party's choice.

The other leaders who are said to be lobbying for the ticket are Harshvardhan, son-in-law of V. Sreenivasa Prasad, former Zilla Panchayat (ZP) Vice-President K. Shivaram and ZP Member Dayanand.

However, it is to be seen who gets the BJP ticket to contest the Assembly polls and the wait is certainly be till the last minute, according to party insiders.

Even as the race for getting the Nanjangud BJP ticket has begun, the Adijambava Yuvavedike, Nanjangud, has urged the BJP to issue the party ticket to either Kote M. Shivanna or S. Aruna Kumar, who come from Adijambava community.

Vedike President Hullahalli Nanjunda said that there are 15,000 Adijambava community voters in Nanjangud Assembly segment and the votes of the community was crucial for the BJP to win the seat. As such, the State BJP President B.S. Yeddyurappa should consider one of the two leaders for the seat, he said.

Allotment of CA site to Azeez Sait Bhavan opposed

Mysuru, Jan. 20 (RKB&NNN)- The Mysuru Rakshana Vedike has demanded cancellation of the allotment of a CA site to construct Azeez Sait Bhavan at Devanur First Stage near Rajivnagar.

Addressing a press conference at the Patrakartara Bhavan here yesterday, President of the Vedike Premkumar said that two acres of land meant for a residential layout in Devanur First Stage has been allotted to Primary and Secondary Education Minister Tanveer Sait by the Mysuru Urban Development Authority (MUDA).

He said that Sait had applied for the CA site mentioning that it was meant for the construction of the Bhavan for SC, ST, Minorities and the poor to promote social, cultural and educational activities.

However, Premkumar pointed out that the two acre land that belonged to MUDA had about 36 sites measuring 40 ft x 60 ft and it was distributed to the site applicants long back. Since the allottees found the place unsuitable, they were given alternative sites.

He charged that this was deliberately done to benefit Sait who had applied for the site in 2013-14. The MUDA officials, a few politicians and the Minister had colluded to bag the prime land, which could cost over Rs.25 crore, he alleged.

The layout was formed in 1988 and the map showed it. But at the meeting held on 5.8.2017 and on 28.8.2017, a decision was taken to approve the allotment of the land by converting it into a Civic Amenities Site, which is illegal, said Mohan, Advisor to the Vedike.

They said that they were not opposing the allotment of CA site to Sait, but what they were opposing was the illegal allotment and they charged that there was corruption involved.

Premkumar said that they would write to the Urban Development Department regarding the irregularities and if no action is taken then they would resort to an agitation.

MUDA Comr. clarifies

When contacted, MUDA Commissioner P.S. Kantharaju clarified that they had not yet allotted these sites for the construction of the said Bhavan.

"We will verify about the project again and then we will take a decision," he said.

PM Modi to deliver keynote address at World Economic Forum, Davos

Prime Minister Narendra Modi is all set to travel to Switzerland to participate in the World Economic Forum (WEF) in Davos. The PM will leave for Davos on Jan. 22 for a two-day visit. At the WEF summit, Modi will deliver the keynote address at the plenary session on Jan. 23.

This will be the first participation by an Indian Prime Minister in the WEF in over two decades. In 1997, the then Prime Minister H.D. Deve Gowda had attended the Davos summit. Ahead of his visit to Davos, PM Modi spoke to Zee News Editor Sudhir Chaudhary yesterday.

This was his first interview in 2018 and Modi spoke on a host of issues including country's economy, demonetisation, Goods and Services Tax, foreign policy and India's growing influence in the world. He discussed his vision and perspective on foreign policy and growth potential, world power among several other topics.

"The world wants to communicate directly with India," Modi said when asked how he sees India's status at the WEF 2018.

Here are the excerpts of the interview...

A file photo of US President Donald Trump and PM Narendra Modi hugging each other during a public address in the Rose Garden of the White House in Washington.

New world order and PTM (Putin-Trump-Modi)

Every time I stand beside world leaders such as Vladimir Putin or Donald Trump, all I remember is that I am the representative of 125 crore citizens and they have given me a mandate to be there. They have given me the mandate to be here. I am an ordinary person and this is why world leaders find it easy to befriend me."

India at WEF meet in Davos

"Davos is a major platform in the financial world. Top business leaders gather there to deliberate upon the economic future of the world. India is the centre of attraction for the entire world. There are two reasons for that. First, our GDP is growing at a fast pace and this has been accepted by leading agencies like the World Bank, Moody's etc. Second, due to our strong democratic values - it's a unique combination of both in India. And that's what has evoked everyone's interest. So it's an opportunity for India to showcase itself on a global platform like WEF in Davos," said PM Modi.

"They said my understanding was limited to Gujarat. I made it my strength. I did not follow protocol. I was a simple man with no baggage. I made friends the world over."

Agenda for Budget 2018

"My government has only one agenda for Budget and that is development. And that's what you will see. India has been instrumental in bringing world's attention to financial transparency. It was acknowledged by former US President Barack Obama."

Prime Minister Narendra Modi in conversation with Zee News Editor Sudhir Chaudhary.

"Good things should be appreciated and bad things should be denounced – that's the role of democracy. In the age of 'Google Guru,' it's easy to find out accusations as well as other facts. We need to be proactive in today's world. Criticism is important in a democracy. However, we faced less criticism and more allegations."

NDA's achievement

"Lakhs of women would cook food on firewood. But today gas connection has reached so many homes. Government is providing insurance to poor families in 90 paise and so far, over 90 crore families have availed it. LED bulbs have been installed across lakhs of homes across India. All this doesn't count as work?"

GST and demonetisation

"Don't evaluate me on demonetisation and GST only. We brought economic reform. The success of GST lies in the power of the federal structure. It takes time to adjust to change, but the outcome will be good. India elects us to make reforms, not to win elections. If our reforms are for the benefit of the citizens, then the elections will reflect that, like we have seen in Uttar Pradesh, Gujarat."

FDI in India

"Before 2014, the world didn't care about what India had to say. But after we came to power in 2014, the situation changed completely. For the first time in 30 years, India has a government with a full majority. This was noticed by the entire world. I witnessed it during the SAARC and G-20 meet. They are accepting us as a leader now. That's because we have done well on the domestic front. From day one, my government's focus has been on good governance, transparency, and this has given us results. India's ranking in ease of doing business jumped from 142 to 100. This resonated across the world. We have the mandate of world's largest democracy – 125 crore citizens."

Employment

"In one year, more than 70 lakh provident fund accounts have been added. Over 10 crore people have benefited from Mudra Yojana launched by the Centre. Government initiatives have empowered small-scale entrepreneurs and informal sectors."

"If someone opens a 'pakoda' shop in front of your office, does that not count at employment? The person's daily earning of Rs. 200 will never come into any books or accounts. The truth is massive people are being employed," he said, further adding about GEM Yojana – an online portal launched in association with all States.

On India in the world sphere

"It was a bipolar world earlier. Now it is multi-polar/ interconnected. In this condition, you have to be proactive and tell the world about yourself. I brought up demonetisation at G20, and it was discussed that financial transparency in the world should be led by us."

Corruption and red-tapism

"This government's achievements wouldn't be possible without support from the bureaucracy. The government machinery works with you when they see their leaders are working without any malice."

On Casteism and Politics

"It is our country's misfortune. I think politics should be done on development, integrity, performance and the future of the country."

Election campaigns and 2019 Lok Sabha elections

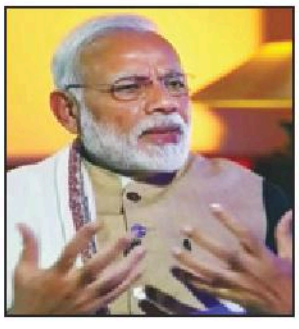
I campaigned on similar lines during Gujarat Chief Minister days. What's new in this?

Prime Minister Modi said that he does not waste his time on calculating numbers for upcoming elections and his daily schedule is very busy to wonder about seats and polls. "Over 125 crore citizens have given me the mandate to be here. I do not have the time to think about next elections," he said.

"I want my nation to utilise me to the fullest, squeeze the most out of me. I am ready to put in my full."

Assembly, Lok Sabha polls must be held together: PM

One election after another, the focus of the politicians gets divided. So let's just do it one particular time. Elections absorb massive manpower. A State's 80 to 100 top officers are acting as Election Observers. How will the State function? Soldiers are on election-duty for 100-200 days in a year. Our idea is to create a planned election system where the polling could be held on a certain week across the country at one time."



"Logically speaking, holding different elections in different dates creates a burden on the exchequer. Politicians are always under stress. So I think both Vidhana Sabha and Lok Sabha polls should be organised simultaneously. It will save money and manpower. The voters will also find it convenient to come out and vote at once."

Forget Helmets

Let's Leave it to Destiny

Our helmet woes never end. That's because helmets are never on our head. Instead, it's on our arm or tucked away in our vehicle's luggage space.

Ever since helmet checking began, two-wheeler riders have turned into rats — they run helter-skelter, risking their own lives and putting the lives of others at risk trying to avoid the cat — the cop.

Now, with the drive against non-ISI certified helmets, this cat and mouse game has begun again and it has made Mysuru roads hell for other vehicle drivers.

Why don't most two-wheeler riders wear helmets? It is for their own good. And by paying fines they are only making the State richer and some cops fatter.

It makes one wonder, why would someone who takes the trouble to wear a helmet not wear one that actually keeps their head safe? It looks like some people wear a shell on their head for protection from the cops, rather than a head injury.

A helmet is supposed to meet the requirements stipulated by the Bureau of Indian Standards (BIS) which requires a helmet to have an inner layer of polypropylene foam and an outer layer made of plastic and other synthetic fibres. These materials reduce the chance of primary brain injury.

Last year, nearly 44,000 riders lost their lives on our roads, so it matters that we wear a helmet and wear one that is ISI-certified because it is a tested product. Let alone the strength of the helmet, even its buckle strength is tested.

An ISI-certified helmet buckle could take a load of upto 105 kg. The one from the street can take just about a 5 kg load. This means when you fall, if you are wearing a cheap helmet your buckle will snap, helmet will roll off your head and you could have a head injury, which could render you paralysed or dead.

We Indians are very cavalier when it comes to safety. Be it not wearing car seat belts or unfastening seat belts in airplanes before the sign is turned off. Be it precariously hanging off trains or running across Railway tracks. Yes, we love short-cuts. They save time. Whether or not it's risky is not something given much thought to. So, we dash across Railway tracks and Highways rather than take the foot over- bridge. We go up a one-way rather than spend another two minutes taking a U-turn a little up the road.

In fact, Maruti Suzuki did a survey where they found that car buyers don't care about safety features. The survey found that when the company offered an air bag for the passenger seat in the Maruti Alto for just an additional Rs. 6,000, only 5% of car buyers opted for it. Guess, they don't like their spouse too much !

When we are headless enough not to keep our own heads safe, the Law must remind us. And why not? According to The Asian Development Bank, road accidents cost developing countries anywhere between 1 - 3 per cent of their Gross National Product in the form of medical care, insurance, productivity loss, etc.

Now, while the Police are seizing non-ISI certified helmets and conducting raids on road-side sellers of unsafe helmets, why doesn't the government simply shut down the factories that manufacture them? It's unfortunate that our government only tries to cure the symptoms instead of eradicating the disease.

Maybe, time has come for the government to explore a classroom project that two class 10 boys from Trichy, Tamil Nadu, came up with — they created a 'Helmet Enabling Device' that prevents the bike from starting until the rider is wearing a helmet.

It is ironic that the government has to hunt down citizens and force them to take care of themselves. Looks like we either have a Death wish or a Superman complex. Or, like everything else, we just leave it to Destiny — after all, it's so much easier than wearing a helmet.

Feathered Fathers

Mom, both in human world and animal kingdom, is often the first to get the due respects when it comes to raising children. But let us not forget to give dad the credit where credit is due. The best dads in the animal kingdom will go to great lengths when it comes to parenting, sacrificing their very lives for their children. This Weekend Star Supplement profiles Jacana bird that will go any extreme to become a dad. Jacanas are found in the Lakes of Mysuru including the Karanji Lake and the Kukkarahalli Lake.

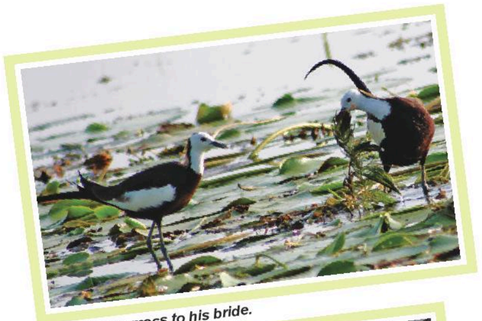
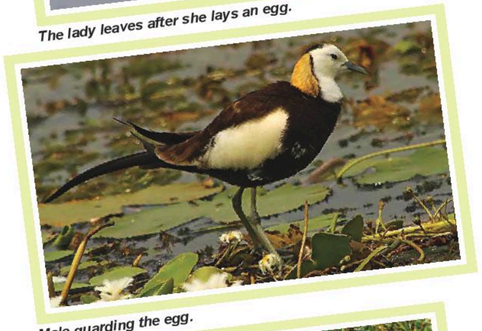
He minds the nest while she takes more mates

The story of a dedicated male Jacana Bird and his Casanova female counterpart



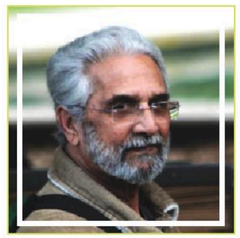
Male offering moss to his bride.

The lady leaves after she lays an egg.



Male guarding the egg.

Carrying his chick in his wings.



By Ragoo Rao

God could not be everywhere so he created Mothers" is an old saying which is very true. For, without mothers, generations will come to a halt and species will not take birth and thrive. In nature, mothers are indispensable - to nurse, up bring, train and make the offspring fit for life's dangers.

Fathers, on the other hand, are not as indispensable as mothers. Except for some species of animals, it is the father that does everything to bring up the offspring from birth until fit and independent to lead a life. There are quite a number of species doing this 'reversal of role'. But for now, we will take a look at the 'Feathered Fathers' - fathers of the bird kingdom who devote their life and raise offspring without the help of the mother rather mothers in any manner. The offspring does not even know who its mother is. Such is the marvel of nature in creating the feathered fathers.

The Great Ostrich, the biggest of the birds is a father worth reckoning here. He does all the roles of a mother and a father to the offspring of many mothers. Right here in Mysuru, at our lakes, the Karanji Lake, the Kukkarahalli Lake and Hebbal Lake we have such devoted fathers of the bird kingdom - The Pheasant-tailed Jacana (Hydophasinus chirurgus) and the Bronze-winged Jacana (Metapodius indicus). Jacanas are also known as the "lily trotter," thanks to its ability to "walk on water" by balancing on lily pads.

Polyandry is practiced by females of the Jacana family like many more species. The Jacana, pronounced as "Ja-ck-na", the multi-coloured birds, Pheasant-tailed with a brownish body, white head, yellow neck and a black garland-like collar, with sickle-shaped long-tail feathers, like a Domestic Rooster with very long legs and toes that are disproportionate to the size of the bird.

Nature has endowed them with such legs and feet enabling them to walk on lotus and lily leaves, earning them the name "Lilly-Walkers or Lilly-trotters". The other species - Bronze-winged Jacana a Violet-bluish black bird, iridescent feathers and a yellow beak and Shiny Bronze-coloured wings, as the name suggests - is more abundant in our urban lakes than the Pheasant-tailed which keeps to the secluded lakes.

Both are amazing fathers - when the time for breeding approaches, with weather and food conditions being favourable, the males start searching for a good nesting site. Both the species build a floating nest made of weeds, aquatic plants and mosses. Once the site is selected, the males guard the site fiercely from other rival males.

The courtship is a simple but ritualistic event. The wandering promiscuous females, on the lookout for a willing male to take care of their seasonal urges and responsibilities, approach a male who has a nesting site reserved. The male, welcomes her by offering her a beak-full of moss or aquatic plants. If the female is satisfied with male's abilities to have a nest and be a father to her kids, accepts the gift.

Then it is the nature that takes over. They mate and she stays for a few days with him while he finishes his nest building. Then she lays a single brownish spindle-shaped egg in the nest. Then they are strangers again. The female walks away as though nothing has happened or she is not responsible for whatever happened. She just shakes her tail and goes off on her way looking for another willing male.

Now our dutiful husband and father, lovingly and caringly fondles the egg, tucks it safe in the nest and further fortifies the nest. This incubation goes on for 28 days and the devoted father does not leave the nest or take his attention away from the egg for the entire period. This he does for, he is aware of the plenty of prowling predators like mongoose, monkeys, foxes and the latest threat the feral dogs waiting to make a future Jacana a mid-day snack.

The time comes for the chicks to hatch and the father knows it's time. For, he can hear the chick chirping and pecking inside the egg itself. Once the chick comes out, the father is all love for the chick. His world flips and he takes care of the chick, takes it around inside the reed beds and vegetation to keep it safe from air-borne predators like the Brahminy Kite and the Marsh Harriers. The chicks grow fast and get strong enough to scamper into the vegetation whenever the father alerts them of intrusion or a threat.

Protecting the chicks from all dangers is an art to be seen in these devoted birds. When threatened with persistent intrusion, the fathers initially take the chicks under their wings and literally carry them away like we humans do with our kids - like holding them in his arms and sulking away.

If intrusion persists, the next step is to tuck the chick safe in a reed bed and then making himself available and get noticed deliberately to distract and draw the attention of the intruder by jumping up and down repeatedly in the air like a YOYO, calling loudly. The frenzied calls and the jumping act distract the intruder and goes after him, leaving the chicks alone. Then the father flies away from the scene and then sulks back to the chicks' hiding place. The intruder is utterly confused and leaves while the chick is safe, the father is happy. But at what cost, risking his own life and exposing himself deliberately to a predator.

As the chick grows fast, the father is lessened of his burden and in a few weeks, the chicks are mature. The Jacanas live a solitary life till the time for another breeding season to start.

A dutiful father, who does everything including risking his life for his child, has rightly been judged and called one of the "TOP TEN DADS OF THE ANIMAL WORLD."

Long live the Jacanas, if at all we allow them to live.

WHY DO JACANA MALES DO THIS?

What kind of dad stays home with the kids while their mother is out having sex? A jacana dad — even when he knows that he's being cuckolded and the offspring he's minding may not be his.

Several species of Jacana are among the animal world's most extreme cases of sex-role reversal, say behavioural ecologists. An assertive female collects a harem of up to five smaller males. In the span of about a week, she lays four eggs in one male's nest while continuing to mate openly with him and others — as many as 65 matings for one clutch.

Even in monogamous bird species, a female may sneak copulations elsewhere. Researchers say that for a Jacana male with a promiscuous partner, the risk of raising unrelated young may be as high as 75 percent. In other words, he is seen her mating with others, yet for three months he incubates eggs and raises chicks unlikely to all be his.

Why do the males do this? Basically, they're stuck, researchers say. Hunting for a less promiscuous female would take time better spent trying to sire eggs. This way, although they may end up with other males' kids, they also achieve the biological imperative of having their own. (Courtesy: National Geographic)

Animals, birds gather together to clean city!

Mysuru, Jan.21 (NNN)-How does it look if elephants hold broomsticks? What if birds themselves collect garbage and put it into the dustbins? Who is going to chase cows that eat plastic?

These were the creative messages on cleanliness, the city's budding artists depicted through their paintings.

Even as the Swachhata fever gripped the city, artists and students of various institutions joined hands painting the wall and the one with R.K. Laxman's 'Common Man' holding a broom with the message 'We Need It We Do It,' is garnering attention.

The event was organised as part of the 'Swachhata Fortnight' jointly by the Directorate of Field Publicity, District Administration, Department of Information and Publicity, Citizens Forum for Swachh Mysuru and JSS Mahavidyapeetha. Deputy Commissioner D. Randeep launched it on Jan. 19 at the Wesley Church compound, opposite the Sub-urban Bus Stand.

More than 150 students of CAVA (Chamarajendra Academy of Visual Arts), Ravi Varma Art Institute, Kalanikethana School of Art and Vijayanthi Kala College exhibited their talent by decorating the wall measuring 180-foot in length and 6.5 ft in height with their art and attracted a lot of attention.

Randeep and Assistant Director Field Publicity T.C. Poornima both painted on the wall, thus showing their dexterity with the brush. The event is aimed at cleaning the city by giving an opportunity to artists to participate in Swachh Bharat Mission, she said.

Paintings catch the eyes: The growth of trees, even between sky-high apartments reflect environment concerns, maintaining of clean toilets in rural areas, pure air blowing amidst peacocks and other birds, Swachh Bharat made out of broomsticks, the clean surroundings around the magnificent Mysore Palace, are some of the more than 50 eco-conscious paintings.

MCC Health Officer Dr. Nagaraju said that budding artistes are painting the places, identified as dirty, along with school premises, gardens and other prominent places.

Advocates, doctors and KSRTC employees will participate in the cleanliness drive on different days, said Poornima.

US Govt. shuts down

The failure to secure a deal means the Government has technically run out of money, ensuring the closure of all but essential operations nationwide.

The government funding bill needed 60 votes in the 100-member Senate but fell short with only 50 supporting it. Most Democrats opposed the bill because their efforts to include protections for hundreds of thousands for the young immigrants known as Dreamers failed.

Huddled negotiations by Senate majority leader Mitch McConnell and Senate Democratic leader Chuck Schumer in the last minutes before midnight were unsuccessful, and the U.S. government technically ran out of money at midnight.

"Tonight, they put politics above our national security, military families, vulnerable children, and our country's ability to serve all Americans," the White House said in a statement.

The Trump administration said it would not discuss immigration until the government is up and running again.

Lecture on optimal retail store placement held at MYRA

Mysuru, Jan.20 - MYRA School of Business hosted Dr. Dmytro Karamshuk - Senior Data scientist at Skyscanner, UK for its 37th edition of InSight Special Lecture Series at its premises in Yelwal recently.

Skyscanner is a leading global travel search site which is known to offer unbiased and free information. More than 60 million people visit and use Skyscanner data comprising the comprehensive range of flight, hotel and car hire options.

The MYRA lecture series was titled 'Geo-Spotting – Mining Online Location-based Services for Optimal Retail Store Placement'. The problem of identifying the optimal location for a new retail store has been the focus of past research, especially in the field of land economy, due to its importance in the success of a business.

Traditional approaches to the problem have factored in demographics, revenue and aggregated human flow statistics from nearby or remote areas. However, the acquisition of relevant data is usually expensive. With the growth of location-based social networks, fine grained data describing user mobility and popularity of places has recently become attainable, all calling for the adoption of Geo-Spotting.

According to Dr. Karamshuk, Skyscanner helps its clients find the best location to begin a new business or if they need to move their business to a new or different location for expansion purposes. Popularity of a venue also depends on the co-location with other venues according to Dr. Karamshuk. To find the popular area one needs to define a radius with geographical coordinates, which depends on the number of venues in the area, heterogeneity of the venue types and percentage of competing venues.

Mobility features also depend on the factors like total number of check-ins, intensity of transition inside the area and intensity of transition outside the area based on Dr. Karamshuk's research. Based on their potential and actual popularity, areas will be evaluated and ranked. Conducting regression will help in giving rank to the areas based on the significant factors of geographical and mobility features.

Dr. Karamshuk's work has been published in top-tier academic conferences and journals. He has been featured in BBC and New Scientist. He worked for three years as post doctoral fellow at King's College London and has earned his Ph.D (2013) in Computer Science and Engineering from Institute of Advanced Studies IMT Lucca, Italy.

Workshop on investment banking for MBA students

Mysuru, Jan. 20 - Morgan Stanley Investment Bank, Tokyo, Global Derivatives Support Manager, Daniel Madar said that it is very important for the Corporate to keep a tab on market conditions and change accordingly in order to keep the value of their Initial Public Offering (IPO) high.

He was speaking at a day-long workshop on "Investment banking and Impact of Bank Consolidation on Corporate Finance," organised by the JSS Centre for Management Studies (CMS), Department of Management Studies, JSS Science and Technology University, for the students of MBA Corporate Finance and MBA Finance Students at its premises here recently.

Explaining the role of Investment Bank in Corporate Finance, he said one of the important roles it plays is the role of Underwriter in IPO. Along with the audit firms, they perform due diligence investigations in conjunction with the drafting of the registration statement.

"An IPO can not only provide a company with access to capital to fuel growth and liquidity for founders and investors, but it provides the public market's unofficial stamp of approval. The capital raised through a successful public offering boosts a business' ability to expand into new markets or grow through acquisitions," he said.

Corporation Bank General Manager (retd.) Ranga Swamy, presently a Visiting Professor at JSS CMS, spoke on the Impact of Bank Consolidation on Corporate Finance.

"The major NPAs in banking sector are Corporate. The cost and timing of the loan from the banks are driving the corporate to the market for loans. The bank consolidation in fact has turned to be a booster to Mergers and Acquisitions through which the Corporate is using 'haircut'-contraction-and expansion in their attempt at financial restructure," he said.

JSS S&T University Vice-Chancellor Dr. B.G. Sangameshwara presented the RBI Survey Certificates to five MBA CF students Asha, Adithi, Ponnamma, Raghavendra and Charan who participated in the live project of RBI - Survey on 'Impact of GST and Demonetisation on MSMES in Mysore District by the RBI.

JSS CMS Head of the Department Dr. P. Nagesh, convener, welcomed.

Adjunct Professor and Programme Coordinator Dr. Bettina C. Sudhaker proposed a vote of thanks. Students from Vidya Vikas Engineering College also participated in the workshop.

Mysuru, Jan.20 - In a reported incident, a woman fought with two chain-snatches and succeed in retaining a part of her Mangal Sutra after she was targeted near her house in V.V. Puram Police Station limits yesterday.

Renuka, a resident of Gokulam First Stage, was crossing the road in front of her house at about 3.30 pm, when two motorcycle-borne youths stopped her under the pretext of asking an address. No sooner Renuka turned towards them, one among the riders attempted to yank off her chain.

AN APPEAL

Support to Save Kodagu from Destruction

The Environment, the Forests, the Landscape and the very future of Kodagu and its people are at stake due to the proposals for two destructive projects of Railways and four Multi-lane National Highways through Kodagu. With the felling of lakhs of trees across Kodagu, the death of River Cauvery will be only a matter of time.

In this regard, the Coorg Wildlife Society (CWS) is coordinating a Save Kodagu and Cauvery Campaign with the support of various organisations and individuals across Kodagu. You may be aware that we have already organised protests at Madikeri and Kutta last year. We have met the Chairman, Railway Board at Delhi and the Project Director of NHAI at Ramnagar. We have also taken up the matter with various political leaders.

However, in order to fight the vested interests that are hell bent on these projects and to put pressure on our ill-advised policy-makers, much more needs to be done. We will need to approach the Courts, organise more protests, involve National TV Channels and send delegations to Bengaluru and Delhi. Press conferences and other media-related events will be required not only in Kodagu but also at Mysuru, Bengaluru and Delhi.

We have already put in a lot of time, money and effort from our side and we will continue to do so. However, we urgently require additional funding support to be able to manage the entire spectrum of actions. We, therefore, request every concerned people hailing from Kodagu to contribute generously and at the earliest towards The Save Kodagu Fund of Coorg Wildlife Society.

Crossed Cheque favouring CWS, Save Kodagu Fund, may please be sent to our office address: Coorg Wildlife Society, PO Box 111, Near DFO Quarters, Chain Gate, Madikeri-571201. Alternately, RTGS payments may be made to CWS, Save Kodagu Fund, Corporation Bank, Madikeri, A/C No: 520101224054488, IFSC Code: CORP0000007.

Please show solidarity to our cause and provide us your valuable support.
